Helping Vulnerable Youths

Runaway & Homeless Adolescents in the United States

Deborah S. Bass, Principal Investigator

It is like water to a parched throat to see NASW seriously addressing services to youths in this country. Helping Vulnerable Youths offers a fresh look at critical issues in the runaway and homeless youth field. The recommendations for action are focused and relevant to the state-of-the-art in programming in the 1990s.

Della M. Hughes, Executive Director
National Network of Runaway and Youth Services, Inc.
Washington, DC

Almost 2 million runaway and homeless adolescents in the United States call the street their home. Who are these runaway and homeless children? Why have they left their parental or foster homes to survive on the streets? And what can social workers do to help them? Helping Vulnerable Youths reports on an intensive, year-long investigation undertaken by the National Association of Social Workers, with support from the Family and Youth Services Bureau of the Administration on Children, Youth, and Families, Department of Health and Human Services. It provides hard data, practice-relevant information, and innovative suggestions and recommendations for social workers and others who serve at-risk adolescents.
